Lac La Biche And Rich Lake Girls Win In Farm Safety Contest

Winners in the Farm Safety Essay Contest in the Lac la Biche School Division were Lynda Bergheim, grade 8 student at the Rich Lake school whose teacher was Mr. Salahub, and Joan Slager, grade 6 student at the Dr. Swift school, Lac la Biche, taught by Mrs. A. Mastaler.

The presentation of a plaque and award button were made to Joan Slager by Mr. G. Filipchuk, superintendent of Lac la Biche Schools, at the Dr. Swift School recently. Winner of the contest in this district last year was Jimmie McMillan.

Following is the essay submitted by Joan Slager:

TRACTOR SAFETY

On May 26, 1955, a farmer in northern Saskatchewan decided to finish working in a field in order to get his wheat into the ground earlier. His land had many hollows which were still full of water. He ate his supper, then went back to the field with his tractor. He worked most of the night. By 2:30 a.m. he had finished what he had planned to finish. Dragging the plow and disc behind the tractor he started for home, but he went too close to the edge of a slough;

NEW USES FOR RADIATION

Nuclear radiation, which looms in most people's minds as a life-destroying monster against which there is little defence, is actually being used to benefit mankind. Writing on the subject in the current issue of The Star weekly is no less an authority than Dr. Henry Seligman, director of the isotope division at the Harwell atomic research establishment. Dr. Seligman who worked at the atomic plant at Chalk River, Ont., in 1943, is now on leave in Vienna where he is serving as a deputy director-general of the International Atomic Energy agency in charge of the research and isotopes department.

The applications of "massive radiation" as the process is called, are very wide indeed, according to Dr. Seligman. Materials subjected to this may change physical properties. Certain plastics can be made heat and waterproof by exposure to radiation, and entirely new materials can be created.

Another important application is the use of radiation for vulcanizing rubber. Normally, rubber molecules are joined together by sulphur atoms, but irradiation can join them without the addition of sulphur or any other chemical. Rubber so vulcanized is marked y superior, especially in its resistance to higher temperatures.

Yet another opportunity of using the power of nuclear isotope radiation is in sterilization procedures, especially in the medical field. There are possibilities in the food preservation feld, too.

In his interesting Star Weekly article, the prominent atomic scientist tells in detail the many useful purposes to which the power of radiation can be put. Readers will find it an absorbing and informative article.

Over 100 Attend FUA Convention; Director Asks Membership Increase

The annual district convention was held in the Jarvie Community Hall, June 21. The attendance was encouraging with 84 delegates and about 20 visitors. Rev. Adam of Jarvie gave the invocation and the address of welcome was given by Councillor Wm. Primeau on behalf of the Jarvie Community.

The district director, C. Anderson, reported on the district affairs. He was concerned about the reduction in membership at a time when farmers are so much in need of a union to speak on their behalf. He hoped that the membership would increase with the possible collection of dues through the municipalities. He also dealt with the forthcoming Egg Marketing Plebiscite, hoping all eligible producers would vote this time. This plebiscite is held by request of the F.U.A. The director stated that an educational program in farm management is urgently needed.

Mrs. H. Beach, F.W.U.A. director, gave a report dealing with Farm Young People's Week, currently held in Edmonton, and the home for the senior citizens to be erected soon in Westlock. She also mentioned the F.U.A. Junior Local formed in Picardville and the part the organization is taking in the National Health Scheme and the Cameron Commission on Education.

Mr. A. Foster, the alternate director, reported on the short course he attended at Banff last fall. He also gave an outline of his part in the promotion of the 7,500 F.U.A. members' car insurance pool.

F.U.A. provincial president, Mr. A. Platt, gave an informative talk. He dealt with numerous topics of current interest to all farmers in Alberta, unsatisfactory grading of hogs, municipal collection of membership dues, the Bracken Commission on railroad cars, the export of cattle to U.S.A., the Price Stabilization Board, grain surplus, deficiency payments and many other items. The president advocated that some of our agricultural surpluses be sold to needy Canadians and to underdeveloped countries at reduced prices.

The delegates paid tribute to the late Mr. Earl Wright of Paxson, who served as district No. 3 director from 1947 until 1949 in the A.F.U. and after the amalgamation until 1951 as F.U.A director.

The provincial F.W.U.A. president, Mrs. C. T. Armstrong, gave one of her usual inspiring addresses with a wide range of topics. She was the F.U.A. representative of the delegation presenting the I.F.U.C. brief at Ottawa in May. Some of the items Mrs. Armstrong mentioned were crop insurance, agricultural credit, deficiency payments, cash advances on farm-stored grain, the Colombo plan, P.F.A.A., tolls on the St. Lawrence Seaway, the Estate Tax Act, Indian affairs, health insurance, education, emigration, etc. Mrs. Armstrong was well satisfied with the publicity and encouragement the C.F.A. gave the I.F.U.C. delegation.

Miss Hanna Anderson, 2nd vice-president of the F.U.A. Junior Section, brought greetings from the Junior Board and reported on the F.Y.P.W., Junior Queen contest, and exchange visitors from neighboring farm organizations. Miss Anderson thanked Mrs. Beach for her devotion to the juniors in our organization.

Several locals gave comprehensive reports on their activities of the past year. This is a new item introduced at the district convention, and it is hoped that the information given will encourage some of the less active locals to use the organization to tho full extent.

Mr. J. M. Burns, leader of the Picardville junior group, urged that more time and effort be spent on our Juniors, "the farmers of tomorrow."

Results of elections were: Mr. C. Anderson, F.U.A. director; Mrs. H. James, F.W.U.A. director; Mr. T. Foster, alternate F.U.A. director; Mrs. H. Beach, alternate F.W.U.A. director, and Harvey Sterling, F.U.A. Junior director.

Dan Smith of Jarvie was elected to represent district No. 3 on a provincial committee investigating the grading and marketing of hogs.

All sub-directors were present, and beside being kept busy on the various committees gave very interesting reports of their respective sub-districts' standing in membership and meetings held during the past year.

Eighteen resolutions were dealt with by the delegates. Among them were: hog premiums, fluctuation of cattle prices, forage crop seeds to be handled by Wheat Boards, price support on forage crop seeds, egg marketing plebiscite, marketing of flax, farm management, contract farming, grain quotas and many others.

The delegates decided to hold the 1959 district convention at Athabasca.

The Jarvie W.A. ladies served a delicious lunch in the Jarvie Legion Hall at noon and refreshments later in the afternoon. They were given a vote of thanks by the delegates and visitors.

Recent visitors at their farms were Emil Zilinski, Mike Chomiak and Fred Mykityshyn, all of Edmonton.

Nick Zilinski and Mike Kochon were business visitors to Athabasca last week.

The following letter was received recently by a concern that manufactures corn syrup:

"Dear Sirs: Though I have taken six cans of your corn syrup, my feet are no better now than they were before I started."

HAIL Struck Here

These are the areas in Alberta that were raked by hail last year. If you escaped, it was a close thing. If you were covered, you were justified. TAKE NO CHANCES THIS YEAR.

YOU CAN'T DEPEND ON LUCK

Anybody can be hailed — last year's victim again, and the farmer in the district where it "never hails". Take out Hail Insurance and be safe. Without insurance, in a high-risk district, you are gambling with your whole year's work — in a low-risk district you are saving only 40c per acre.

COST IS NO OBSTACLE

The insurance premium is based on the frequency of hail in your district. One year, sooner or later, you are practically certain to be hailed. Farmers, who try to outguess the elements, often skip their insurance in a hail year. The safe plan is to insure consistently year by year. One hailing can return all your premiums.

BUY THE BEST PROTECTION

The non-profit, farmers' mutual insurance plan

gives wider benefits at rates generally lower than other companies. The Standard Plan gives a cash premium refund as well as a dividend on earnings in excess of reserve requirements. A Pro Rata Plan is also available.

NOW IS THE TIME TO ACT!

Records show that 70% of the damage awards are paid for losses occurring after July 20th. We are in this danger period NOW. A hail storm between now and harvest can wipe out your crop and cause serious financial loss. Protect your investment and assure cash to carry on and seed the next crop.

Field Day At Bremner On Bunker Silos

EDMONTON—In order to demonstrate some of the most advanced and economical methods of filling a bunker silo, a field day is being held on Saturday, July 5 at 1:30 p.m. at C. E. Osbaldeston's farm, SE 14-52-33-w4, 6 miles north of Bremner corner on Highway 16 and 3 miles east or 4 miles south of Fort Saskatchewan and 3 miles east.

It is expected that several makes and types of forage harvesters will be on hand to give field demonstrations.

While visiting the Osbaldeston farm, visitors will have an opportunity to inspect a modern loose-housing barn and milking parlor which is presently under construction and nearing completion.

For a good many years ensilage has been recognized as being ideal winter forage for livestock. In the past, silage making has not been too popular in western Canada due to the initial high cost of tower type silos and the prohibitive cost of filling them as well as the hard manual labor involved.

The making of silage has been revolutionized by the use of the "bunker" or horizontal type silo and the introduction of modern labor-saving equipment. This type of silo can be very economically built at almost any convenient location providing surface drainage is reasonably good and the big advantage is that it can be self-fed.

Top quality silage can be made providing the forage is at the proper stage of growth and proper methods are used in filling, packing and covering the silo. Those who have bunker silos in use, state that they can put up forage in this way more cheaply than by putting it up as hay. One of the most important features is that wet weather is not a factor in reducing the quality of the forage.

The Veterans' Land Act administration strongly recommends the use of the "bunker" type silo as a method of reducing feed costs and increasing livestock profits.

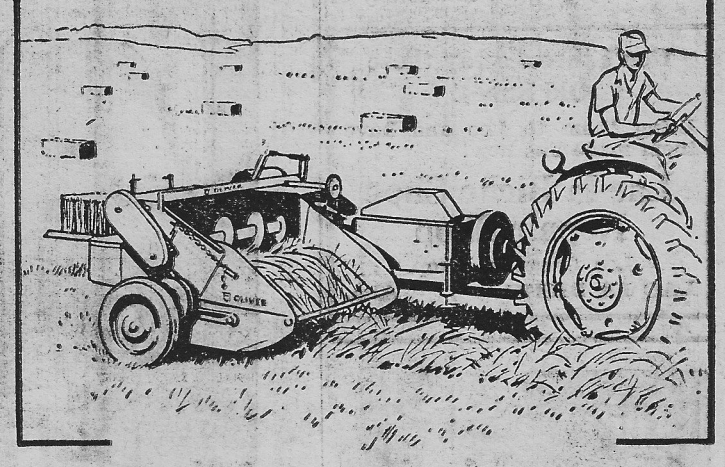
BALERS

All-Around Tonnage Champs with "Pivot-Balanced" Drive



Match a new Oliver—twine-tie or wire-tie—with any other machine in your small, rough, patch-pattern fields. There's where it gobbles up the windrows, bales up to ten tons per hour as easily as on the straightaway.

You get Oliver's exclusive "pivot-balanced" drive ...and exceptionally short coupling. Just follow the windrow with the rear tractor wheel—even around the sharpest corner. Your Oliver gets the hay... saves hours of time when time counts most.

Here are balers with everything: new, leaf-saving pickup...swinging drawbar for safe transport... overrunning clutch (extra)...protective devices for all important units. You can adjust bale length in seconds—from 12 to 50 inches. Twine- and wire-tying units are easy to interchange, and an engine (extra) is easy to mount when desired.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Sir: For the past few months I have read with interest and amusement, the "Letters to the Editor" department of the local daily rag. Of prime interest were the letters concerning the present condition and nature of our educational system. The majority of these writers advocate regression—"return to the good old days of the hickory stick and the three R's. They want to rid the schools of progressive education. They are resorting to archaism on a small scale—a ridiculous desire, because we live in the present, not the past.

This desire to return to the good old days is almost identical to Plato's theory of education. In his "Republic," only the wisest were to be educated. The teachers were not to use Socratic methods, those of learning by enquiry, but rather a method of indoctrination without question. It could be called learning without meaning. Pupils were to learn and remember what was told to them, nothing more. Plato's reason for prescribing to such a system was that an inquiring mind might bring about a change in society—he abhored change. Also, under such a system, absolute truths could be arrived at. His system falls apart, however, because of his desire to educate only the intellectually superior. It is impossible to separate the intellectually superior from the intellectually inferior through a system of indoctrination. However it is possible to stifle individual initiative; this is necessary is change is not to take place. A century ago, even a mere fifty years ago, the majority of educators used a system of indoctrination as their method of teaching—"facts" were presented without explanation.

Does it seem reasonable for children to learn a multitude of facts for no reason except that it trains the mind? This idea of training the mind is as old, and as ridiculous as Plato's theory of education. Do these people merely want their children to leave school with a great number of facts stored away in their minds? This, if it should happen, would certainly lead to stagnation of society. Facts alone are useless unless they can be applied. Therefore, it is necessary for children to learn how to learn, how to think through problems, how to apply solutions of problems to other problems, and how to think for themselves.

A. J. Toynbee has this to say of archaism: When a civilization fails to meet and solve the problems of the present, the masses may resort to archaism—an attempt to return to a system which existed in the past—in order to salve its problems. It solves nothing, but defeats its own cause. It is a move made in panic when present problems seem insurmountable. It is one of the steps leading to destruction of the existing society.

Here I must defend one of Plato's theories—Not in its entirety, however. He said, in effect, that if the rulers ruled, the workers worked, and the slaves slaved, then this was justice. I believe that if we left the problems of education to the educationalists—not politicians—they would solve them.

You do not hear educationalists—true educationalists—continually and irrationally criticizing the present condition of the system. Only the layman criticizes irrationally.

Rational argumentation is a good thing, irrational argumentation is worthless. The arguments which these people have put forth are worthless. In the first place these people showed no sign of knowing what the educational problems are. Have these people heard of mental, physical and emotional differences amongst individuals? Are they acquainted with any of the studied carried out by educationalists for the purpose of establishing what methods are the best to use? Secondly, the arguments which they put forth are contrary to their way of life—they defend Plato's theories. None of these people would advocate an absolute dictatorship; Plato did. None of these people would advocate a stagnant, unchanging world; Plato did. Yet, this is exactly what these people defend.

Industrialists, agriculturists, doctors and other professional people are improving the conditions in their own fields. Education must keep abreast with these changes; or do these die-hard traditionalists truly wish to return to the Stone Age?

THE Homemaker

By EDITH WHITNEY

July is the month when flowers are at their best. And so it is then that you should be at your best and bring them into your home. Flower arranging is fun not a chore. Everyone likes flowers no matter where they are but the picture is prettier if they are attractively arranged.

Attractive arrangement begins with a container. A container must suit the arrangement. It need not be expensive. Many arrangements are lovely in a casserole dish, a pie plate, a platter or fruit dish or it may be a special flower vase. However be sure it is approximately the same weight as the flower. Large roses and tiger lilies need heavier containers such as casserole dishes.

Your next requirement is a holder for your flowers. Again this may be bought or it may be chicken wire or just a tangled mass of wire placed in the container.

Now comes the real joy—gathering and arranging the blossoms. It is best to gather flowers either early or late in the day when it is cooler. Cut the flowers slantwise and insert immediately into water to reduce the shock of cutting. Never "over pick". The best flower arrangements have a limited number of blossoms and enough greenage to set them off.

Place the flowers in your container in such a manner that they will fit the position in your house for which they are intended. It may be a three-sided mantle arrangement or a low oval for the table. However when you arrange be sure it fits the space and pleases you.

Lac La Biche And Rich Lake Girls Win In Farm Safety Contest

the rear wheels of the tractor became bogged down.

Now came the job of trying to get out. He unhitched the machinery and tried to get out, but it was useless. The rear wheels dug deeper. He found a log in the nearby bush, and decided to chain the rear wheels to the log and attempted to make the wheels jump over it. He placed the log in front of the wheels and chained the wheels to it. Then he got on the tractor and released the clutch. Instead of jumping over the log, the tractor tipped over backwards pinning the farmer under the overturned tractor. He was found at 9 a.m. still conscious but fightfully cold, having lain in the wet mud for five hours. He had a broken leg and he was badly brushed. The acid from the battery had eaten into his flesh. He was taken to Goodsoil Union Hospital immediately. Later he was flown to Saskatoon University Hospital by air ambulance. He died one week later leaving a widow and eight children.

This accident could have been prevented if this man would have come back in the morning to get it out instead of trying to get out at night. Had he listened to the radio and read pamphlets sent out, he would have known that putting a log under the wheels of a tractor was dangerous practice.

Following is the essay written by Lynda Bergheim, Rich Lake:

TRACTOR SAFETY

Extra! Extra! Read all about it. The shocking headlines glared out at me as I purchased the Edmonton paper. Another tractor accident had occurred. I'll never forget how I felt while reading this particular item. If only some people would realize the importance of safety rules for tractors. Accidents don't happen, they are caused.

The place, Ashmont, Alberta. This terrible tragedy happened on a lonely winding road. A young lad under sixteen was the driver of the tractor. He was taking a group of five children to a nearby lake for a picnic. The children were in a wagon pulled by the tractor and they were laughing merrily. The young lad, decided to give the children a thrill, pulled the throttle down and began careering around the bends of the winding road. This was great fun until they hit a bump, which sent the tractor and wagon in the direction of a large tree. Spinning the wheel madly the boy had turned it too sharply and they crashed into another tree. There were screams, a crashing sound and then nothing. Agonizing moans followed.

Two fishermen arrived at the scene an hour later. This hideous tale was witnessed on that beautiful winding road. There were two who escaped fatal injury. They did not, however, escape injury entirely. Aside from body injury, their minds are scarred with the memory of that direful day, which started out so peacefully and ended so horribly.

It was realized too late, that an older and more responsible person should have been chauffeur for the group. An older person would have had a license and would not want any convictions against him. Also, an older person would not get any excitement out of reckless driving.

Beware! All tractor drivers. Let this accident be a warning to you and not just an interesting news item, which you read today with horror, but forget completely tomorrow.
